

ABSTRACT

The invention involves a kit to update a digital data processing system, such as a computer or PC, so that it can make direct use of the keyboard in integrating a non-existent supplementary symbol such as, for example, the euro currency symbol. It comprises a software medium on which is recorded the update software for using a supplementary symbol on a key of the keyboard, and an interchangeable key that additionally bears the representation of the supplementary symbol.